Making primary care fair

Everyone has the right to good healthcare

Professionals working in general practice have told us they need support to deliver good care to people with learning disabilities and autism, but there is no mandatory training around this in primary healthcare.

#MyGPandMe is connecting GPs, nurses, practice managers, receptionists, support workers, patients and families to overcome health inequalities and support better health outcomes.

If you'd like to receive free GP training, get in contact with us.
